Honorable Norman S. Paul
Assistant Secretary of Defense (Manpower)
Washington, D. C. 20301

Dear Mr. Paul:

At this time we are studying the possible impact which emergency relocation, precipitated by threatened or actual enemy attack, would have upon the functioning of the United States Intelligence Board and its member departments and agencies. For this purpose we need information as to the numbers of representatives from each of the organizations comprising the intelligence community who are designated to report, under such circumstances, to relocation sites which have been hardened against the effects of radiation fallout.

Specifically, we should like to know the numbers of members of each of the following departments and agencies for whom arrangements have been made at the Department of Defense hardened relocation
